

Fringe review - Freefall

MELISSA MACK

06 Mar, 2010 05:11 PM

Freefall - Gravity and Other Myths

What are you afraid of? Gravity and Other Myths are a new SA based circus group that want to find out. The troupe all have a background in cirkids and flip, hula hoop, tumble, jump and dive their way through an innovative story of embarrassment and fear.

The cast are young, talented and radiate energy. Their enthusiasm will capture your attention and imagination. This is a very Fringe show, it's not shiny or perfect and the element of surprise gives it a charismatic charm you don't see in many other performances. It's what you'd expect in the Garden and a show you'll be very pleased you spent your money on.

Gravity and Other Myths are comfortable and professional on stage and one can only hope that this won't be the last Adelaide sees of this talented troupe.

Freefall is on at The Ringbox until March 14.